

Addressing Barriers to Change in Your Learners

Transcript of Video FAQ

June 4, 2009

<http://education.accme.org/video/accme-video-faq/addressing-barriers-change-your-learners>

Description: Why is it important that my CME program remove, overcome or address barriers to physician change?

Accredited providers are responsible for facilitating change in their physician learners. And one of the things that accredited providers can do is recognize why their learners aren't doing what they've been taught; why the learners have not been able to translate their new knowledge, their new competence, into new performance, into new patient outcomes. And to move the educational programs to addressing those barriers and addressing why the physician hasn't changed. And moving beyond the giving of information and the training of the physicians to empowering the physicians to implement that which they now know, that which they have now taught, so that those physicians can be greater contributors to health care improvement overall.

© 2009 Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education; all rights reserved.

For non-commercial educational use only. For permission to reproduce and/or distribute for other purposes, please contact postmaster@accme.org.